

Marion Burgess

Marion Burgess spent most of her career at the University of NSW, Australia undertaking research, teaching and consulting in the areas of environmental and occupational noise management. Following her retirement, she continues to be actively involved as an Honorary Associate Professor in research and teaching at both the Canberra and Sydney campuses at University of NSW and at University of Technology Sydney. She is a Past President of the International Commission for Acoustics and of the International Institute of Noise Control Engineering. She is an active member of the Australian Acoustical Society as one of the editors of the journal Acoustics Australia. She has presented plenary, invited and contributed papers at conferences and is involved in the organisation of conferences in the region. In 2015 she was awarded the membership of the Order of Australia for her national and international contributions to acoustics. She has been co-organiser with Michael Taroudakis of the International Year of Sound 2020-2021.